

Three Reasons The Right Comedian Can Make Your Event

Chris Bliss - the right comedian

1. Communication

The best comedians are also terrific communicators. Great comedy makes the complex simple and the obvious new – or the new obvious, if that’s what’s called for, which is why humor is one of the most effective tools for memorable messaging.

“I strongly recommend Chris Bliss to any company looking for a creative communicator to help them shape key events and deliver key takeaways in a memorable and impactful way.”
Lelia Konyon H.R. Director, Noble Resources

At the end of the day, the success of your meeting comes down to whether your key takeaways actually get taken away from the meeting space into the workplace. Integrating an experienced corporate comedian like Chris Bliss into your event is a proven way to guarantee that your message gets across.

2. Collaboration

When you hire Chris Bliss, you don’t just get “one of the brightest comedians around” (to quote Jay Leno). You get an active collaboration with a total pro who will craft his presentation to suit your agenda, and also work with you on shaping event flow and scripting when requested.

“His uniquely intelligent and topical comedy was made all the more engaging and funny because of the work he did to prepare specifically for our audience, attending general sessions and ... incorporating comical observations common to everyone in the room.”
Michael Morrison Senior VP, Marketing Davidson Companies

Chris is passionate about preparation, from combing through conference materials to attending every general session possible, so that he can reference and reinforce pivotal moments and messages. He’s a dedicated professional, committed to the success of your event.

3. Energy

Your event is serious business. The question is: how can you guarantee attendees leave your event not just re-motivated, but reinvigorated? Where’s the energy going to come from? The answer is laughter, and that’s no joke!

“One word – WOW!! I highly recommend you” Kareen Boutros, Broward Workshop
“A standing ovation ... I heartily recommend Chris Bliss” M. Morrison, Davidson
“Everyone was still talking about you the rest of the weekend” A. Van Erp, Ameritas
“blew everyone away...fantastic...highly memorable” Paul Eder, Protective Life

When it comes to stress management, research proves that laughter offers a remarkable ROI. It reduces tension, improves perspectives, releases endorphins, and refreshes mind, body, and spirit. Best of all, it really is contagious. Whether opening or closing your conference, there’s nothing like humor and laughter to get the conversation started and keeping it going.
